INTRODUCTION

One thing is clear: We're not the same people that went home to work in early 2020. The collective experience of the past two years has left a lasting imprint, fundamentally changing how we define the role of work in our lives. Employees everywhere are rethinking their worth-it equation and are voting with their feet. And as more people experience the upsides of flexible work, the more heavily it factors into the equation. For Gen Z and Millennials, there's no going back. And with other generations not far behind, companies must meet employees where they are.

As leaders puzzle over how to make the future of work work, big questions loom: What is the role of the office? How do teams build social capital in a digital-first world? The challenge ahead for every organization is to meet employees' great new expectations head-on, while balancing business outcomes in an unpredictable economy.

To help leaders navigate the uncertainty, Connection, in partnership with Microsoft, has created this eBook to help reduce the complexities and provide expert guidance to navigate the modern workplace.

THE POWER OF PARTNERSHIPS

Navigating the modern workplace is hard. You deserve a partner who understands you—and the right technology that celebrates your strengths and helps you navigate the modern workplace with modern devices powered by the most secure operating system.

THE EVER-CHANGING WORKPLACE

The experience of the past two years has reshaped our priorities, identities, and worldview, drawing a bright line between what's important—health, family, time, purpose—and what's not. As a result, employees' worth-it equation—what people want from work and what they're willing to give in return—has changed. The power dynamic is shifting, and perks like free food and a corner office are no longer what people value most.

The Workforce Is Still in Transition

Meeting these new employee expectations will require a mindset shift that considers the experience of the past two years. Employees' worth-it equation has changed—and there's no going back. The best leaders will create a culture that embraces flexibility and prioritizes employee wellbeing—understanding that this is a competitive advantage to build a thriving organization and drive long-term growth.

FOR GEN Z, THERE'S NO GOING BACK

According to the 2022 Microsoft Work Trend Index: Annual Report, mobility and entrepreneurial freedom are non-negotiable for younger employees' flexibility.

- 58% of Gen Z are considering changing jobs in the year ahead versus 43% overall
- 58% are considering a shift to hybrid work in the year ahead versus 53% overall
- 56% are considering a shift to remote work in the year ahead versus 49% overall
- 70% are considering earning additional income outside their current employer via a side project or business in the year ahead versus 59% overall
- LinkedIn data says Gen Z is the most mobile generation on the platform: since the pandemic began, their migration rate is up 23% in the U.S.
- 52% of Gen Z hybrid employees say they're moving to a new location because they're able to work remotely versus 38% overall
- Gen Z's likelihood to engage with a company posting on LinkedIn if it mentions flexibility is far higher (77%) than Millennials (30%) and others on the platform of hybrid workers say their biggest challenge is knowing when to work remotely and when to work in-person.*

Are You Ready for Hybrid Work?

Building your hybrid work toolkit? Many hybrid employees are considering a switch to remote while even more remote employees are considering a switch to hybrid in the year ahead. Prepare your hybrid employees for success. Arm your teams with safe, secure, collaborative tools where you can come together to get work done. Microsoft Teams can help people stay connected, collaborate seamlessly, and simplify work, in a secure and compliant way—all in one place.

Working Remotely: How to Make It Work for You

of hybrid employees say they're likely to go remote in the year ahead.*

Many workers around the world have spent the last couple of years working remotely at least part-time.

According to LinkedIn, in March of 2020, 1 in 67 U.S. jobs offered a remote work option. Today, that number is about 1 in 7. And remote jobs on LinkedIn attract 2.6 times more views and nearly 3 times more applicants compared to on-site roles.

As teams have adjusted to this new remote reality, discover how the right technology and solutions can help empower teams to work as one and maximize productivity wherever they are.
